About Framee

Framee breathes new life into old iOS and Android tablets, turning them into remote controlled picture frames. So your photographs can become part of loved ones' surroundings, and you can always feel present. It's simple enough for any family member to use and clever enough to work on old, slow tablets.

There are over a quarter of a billion iOS and Android tablets which cannot update to recent OS versions and thus run most apps, and Framee aims to give these devices a new lease on life.

Nick and Alberto met working at imaging company Canon, where they discovered a shared fascination for the potential of idle screens connecting us to distant family and memories.
